Hygienic Tea Tree Oil Skin Wash

Jenny Bacon from Metique kindly sent me some Tea Tree Oil products to review, I am a massive fan of Tea Tree Oil and use many facial products that contain this amazing ingredient, to help my skin when it's needed. I was sent this product (as well as a few other small things!) that states a 'skin wash' and I have never used Tea Tree Oil washes on my body before, only my face so I was intrigued to see what happens and if it was any use!

Packaged in a glossy white opaque tube with a blue press down. This tube is perfect for use when you press down with one hand for the product to squirt out into the other hand! A few squirts of the product and you have a good amount to massage into your body. Contains 5% of Tea Tree Oil with a really strong scent, I am not the biggest fan of the scent and it can sometimes be overpowering for my need, but I got used to it quickly. I didn't notice a massive improvement, possibly just a new skin wash to add to my collection to clean my body.

However, I have been using it mostly on my face each morning and when I apply it, it gives off a cooling sensation, telling me its actually working and getting right into my skin. Mixing with water, but as this does not contain sulphates it will not lather up! Leave for under a minute then wash off with warm water. I do notice a difference after every use, cleanliness and freshness. I will probably continue using this on my face more than my body. Contains Vitamin E too and is non drying either, perfect. Many people don't know the good uses of Tea Tree Oil so I'm going to give you some info... it originates from Australia, where the antiseptic properties are renowned and have been used for centuries by the aborigines. What does it do you may ask? Well it kills bacteria without disrupting the resident flora on the skin!
